Sustainable Urban Mobility Issues and Transport Solutions

The SUMITS project has been created to provide a forum through which city administrations can exchange experiences and debate key issues around urban mobility that affect citizens.

It will act as a conduit for cities to respond to EU policy and to influence technical standards in urban transport delivery.

Annual Conferences

The SUMITS project intends to host three conferences, each addressing topical issues that affect urban mobility and the quality of life for citizens in their city. The first of these will take place in Vienna in May 2013 focusing on how cities are redistributing public space for different modes of travel. The topics to be discussed include new developments in sectors like:

- Cycling;
- Strategies for pedestrians; and
- Sustainable urban mobility planning in general.

Vienna is leading the way on many of these issues as a means of tackling the challenges of improving air quality, creating a sense of community and public health in general.

Future events are scheduled for:

- Gothenburg in April 2014
- Copenhagen in March 2015

Background & Objectives

The SUMITS project is an initiative put forward by 10 IMPACTS Europe member cities. Partner cities contribute both technical inputs and political guidance to the project.

Debates will range freely across urban mobility issues, but will tend to be driven by city administrations need to respond to EU policy initiatives and a desire to share best practice.

SUMITS therefore aims to:

Support the rationale of IMPACTS as a vehicle for long-lasting collaboration between municipalities around the theme of sustainable urban mobility.

Provide a forum where differing views on urban transport solutions can be debated, core lessons identified and messages communicated to appropriate decision makers at local, regional, national and EU level.
